Dixon will be implementing a price adjustment effective February 1, 2023. With many costs beginning to stabilize, the goal of this adjustment is to align pricing with the current reality. Some prices need to be raised, while others will be decreased. The average weighted increase is approximately 2%.

2022 was a year marked by turbulence in our businesses. We worked together to overcome supply chain challenges and price volatility and made it successful. As the calendar turns to a new year, uncertainty continues to rule, with the biggest unknown being the state of the economy. At Dixon, we are planning to control the things we can control, namely keeping inventory at normal levels to support our customers and controlling costs to limit the impact of price increases.
