System Sensor (A Honeywell Fire Brand) Inflation Surcharge

Dear Valued Customer,

System Sensor (A Honeywell Fire Brand) remains committed to servicing our partnership to the best of our ability through this unprecedented period. Our teams continue to work tirelessly to mitigate commodity and material shortages by any means possible including qualifying new components and paying premiums for parts and air freight. We continue to negotiate supply chain availability and lead times through executive level supplier discussions and have made both resource and capital investments to improve our fulfillment capabilities. Despite our best efforts to moderate the inflationary pressures experienced with these challenges, we have no choice but to pass an additional inflationary surcharge through our partners.

As a result, System Sensor (A Honeywell Fire Brand) will be adding an incremental 8.0% inflation surcharge on the net product value on all shipped orders. New price lists will be published in the upcoming days. The pricing in these new price lists will incorporate the incremental inflation surcharge. All existing and new orders that ship on or after the new price lists are issued will invoice with the new price levels.
